What It Means for Christians to Be an Easter People

Living in the Light of the Resurrection

For Christians, the phrase “Easter People” beautifully captures a vibrant, ongoing journey rooted in the resurrection of Jesus Christ. It’s more than just a once-a-year celebration; being an Easter People invites us all to embrace hope, experience the power, and live the transformation that the resurrection offers every day. This special identity influences beliefs, worship, and the way millions around the world choose to live their lives.

Our core belief is that Christ’s resurrection is not just a historical event but a living reality today. The empty tomb symbolizes the conquest of sin and death, offering us new beginnings and unwavering hope. For Easter People, each Sunday’s worship softly recalls that first Easter morning, serving as a warm reminder that Jesus is alive and present in our world now. This conviction energizes us and strengthens our faith, inspiring us to grow closer to God and share this joyful hope with others.

Being part of an Easter People involves embracing a renewed, joyful life. Christians are encouraged to embody the message of the resurrection through active holiness, justice, and love. The resurrection provides reassurance of God’s forgiveness and hope for new life, motivating acts of kindness and service within communities. It also offers comfort in tough times, with the risen Christ walking alongside believers and promising ultimate restoration and peace.

Grace lies at the core of our Christian identity, beautifully illustrating God’s unearned favor through Christ’s victory over death. As Easter People, we treasure faith in Christ as the way to salvation, not through our works, but by trusting in the risen Savior. This essential truth fosters humility and gratitude, enriching both our community worship and personal devotion. Through comforting hymns, heartfelt prayers, and inspiring sermons, we remember the resurrection, encouraging us to live as joyful witnesses to God’s redemptive power.

Being Easter People cultivates a hopeful and optimistic perspective. Christians hold the conviction that Christ’s resurrection provides a glimpse of the eventual renewal of all creation. This uplifting hope of Jesus Christ’s return inspires us to take action in the world, working towards justice and peace, as we eagerly anticipate the full unveiling of God’s kingdom. The resurrection is not just a past triumph; it remains an ongoing motivation and a future promise.

For Christians, being Easter People means joyfully embracing the hope of the resurrection. It involves living out the love, grace, and purpose of our risen Christ and sharing that uplifting message with a world in need. Each day offers a new chance to celebrate life and to proclaim: “He is risen indeed!”

A Life-Filled Prayer

A high school senior in Washington, D.C., shared this graduation prayer, which is relevant to people of all ages:

“Dear God, grant us one thing before we leave the sheltered reassurance of our childhood. Show us life. Not an empty, shallow world of shallow people and shallow dreams, but real life. For we have known the bliss of childhood as well as the passion of adolescence.

“We want to make the world a better place, but we don’t know how. We want to throw our arms around our brothers and our sisters, but our hands cannot reach. We want to break the cycle of violence and the bonds of injustice in our society, but we’re not strong.

“Smile on us when we drink from the waters of truth. When we are old, reassure us that our struggle helped make the world a kinder, gentler, and more peaceful place. And please, God, don’t let us die without ever having truly lived.”
